CAÑON CITY COMMUNITY PROFILE

Cañon City has a population of 17,141 and is the county seat of Fremont County, which has a population of 48,939. We sit at the mouth of the "Grand Canyon of the Arkansas", the Royal Gorge, which attracts thousands of visitors every year. Visitors come from all over the world to visit the Royal Gorge Region. The Arkansas River is the most heavily commercially rafted river in the United States. Rafting along with Gold Medal fishing, mountain bike trails, the Royal Gorge Bridge & Park, Royal Gorge Route Railroad, Winery at Holy Cross Abbey, Museum of Colorado Prisons, Royal Gorge Zipline Tours, Gold Belt Tour, and much more makes Cañon City a thriving tourist destination. We also have several large festivals and events that take place throughout the year which attracts visitors, such as the Music & Blossom Festival, summer Jazz concerts at Macon Plaza, Flashback on Main Street, First Friday Downtown Art Walk, Whitewater Festival, Harvest Festival, and Christmas Parade of Lights. Cañon City is also home to 33 churches, various art galleries, an art center, antique shops, a public library, a historic & regional museum, and a Colorado prison museum housed in a 1935 women's correctional facility!

Cañon City is rich with history including dinosaur fossils and quarries. Skyline Drive, west of Cañon City off of Highway 50, has dinosaur tracks along the ridge. In addition to the Skyline Drive dinosaur footprints we have Garden Park, the home to world famous dinosaur fossil discoveries. For more information on our geology and history, visit the Royal Gorge Regional Museum & History Center at 612 Royal Gorge Boulevard.

The largest employers in the area are the Colorado Department of Corrections who employ over 2,000 people, and the Federal Bureau of Prisons with over 1,000 employees. Centura Health and other health care services employ over 1200 people combined. Holcim is a major manufacturer in our area. Interroll Engineering West and DFC Ceramics are two smaller manufacturers in Cañon City. There are also various smaller manufacturers located at the industrial park at the Fremont County Airport. TechSTART, a community of innovation sector entrepreneurs and remote tech workers, is located downtown. Many employers fill positions through the Colorado Workforce Center located at 3224 Independence Road (Cañon City). Their phone number is (719) 275-7408.

Cañon City is nestled in the valley between the Wet and Sangre de Cristo Mountains which protects us from harsh winter conditions. Cañon City is a semi-arid climate at an altitude of 5,332 feet. We enjoy an average of 325 days of sunshine and approximately 13.5 inches of precipitation. When it does snow, the snow is generally melted away by noon.

Colorado is best known for mountains and a majority of sunny days plus a dry climate. However, because of that, Colorado residents have to irrigate regularly if we wish to have flowers and a nice garden. Even in the winter, we have to give lawns and trees a big drink of water when there's a period of no moisture and much sun.

CAÑON CITY HISTORY

After the great inland sea that once covered the entire west was disturbed by violent upheavals, the Arkansas River began to flow to the east. While the river wore a channel, a gentle up thrust continued as the Rocky Mountains were born and grew to their present heights. The river, dropping some 5000 feet in the first 125 miles, cut through the granite rock as it rose, thus severing Fremont Peak which now rises a thousand feet above the surrounding countryside. This erosive action makes the Grand Canyon of the Arkansas, or Royal Gorge as we call it today, one of the most unique canyons of the world because of its having been formed by erosion and not by a fissure from an earthquake.

The Arkansas River, one of the longest in the U.S., is born in the central Colorado Rockies near Leadville and empties into the Mississippi River southeast of Pine Bluff, Arkansas. The river is cutting the gorge deeper at the rate of about one foot every 2,500 years.

The Ute, Sioux, Cheyenne, Kiowa, Blackfoot, and Comanche Indians all frequented the area. Many wintered at the mouth of the Royal Gorge, an area just west of the Territorial Prison facility on the west side of Cañon City, taking advantage of the mild winter climate while bathing in the natural hot spring and rubbing their bodies with oil skimmed from the surface of Oil Creek, now called Fourmile Creek.

Lt. Zebulon Pike was the first white explorer to enter the area and probably built the first permanent structure. Halted in his trek to the headwaters of the Arkansas by the awesome Royal Gorge canyon, in some places as narrow as 50 feet, Lt. Pike headed northwest into South Park.

The area was first claimed as Spanish territory and the area north of the river was purchased from France as a part of the Louisiana Purchase. Mexico, having gained her independence in 1821, laid claim to the area south and west of the river. The Republic of Texas subsequently laid claim to the same area, thus becoming the third foreign country to lay claim to the area. The United States then annexed the area in 1845.

Cañon City was first organized by the Cañon City Claim Club on March 13, 1860. The Cañon City Claim Club was composed of six members who organized to develop coal, iron, gypsum, marble, and granite in the area.

Mr. and Mrs. Anson Rudd arrived in August 1860 and gave birth to Anson Spencer Rudd, the first white child to be born and survive in the area. A census of that year shows 727 residents in the area, 128 of which were female. The original Anson Rudd cabin still stands behind the Municipal Museum. In 1861 residents voted to name the settlement "Town of Canyon City" but the reporter for the meeting used the Spanish Cañon spelling, thus we became Cañon City.

Cañon City was a typical wild western town complete with shootings, hanging and court convened in a room over a saloon, but with no discovery of gold in the area and recruitment of troops for the Civil War, a population decline took place. In 1865, according to Thomas Macon, another founding father of the area, only 25 residents remained.

The first territorial (federal) prison opened on June 1, 1871. After Colorado became a state in 1876, the facility was given to the state of Colorado and became Colorado State Prison.

In the late 1870's the walls of the spectacular Royal Gorge reverberated with the shots and shouts of the Royal Gorge Railroad War. The Atchison Topeka and Santa Fe Railroad and the Denver & Rio Grande Railroad waged a battle to obtain the right-of-way through the gorge.

In 1878, extensive dinosaur remains were discovered north of Cañon City. The world's first Stegosaurus was discovered in the late 1800's. Some of those fossils are now in Carnegie Museum, Peabody Museum, Denver Museum of Natural History, and others.

In 1903 the famed Skyline Drive was constructed by convict labor chain gangs. This drive rises 800 feet above Cañon City providing a spectacular view of the area. Dinosaur footprints were discovered on the side of Skyline Drive in 2001.

The Royal Gorge Park is owned by the City of Cañon City through a land patent issued by the United States Congress through the efforts of U.S. Senator Guy U. Hardy. The construction of the Royal Gorge Bridge, 1053 feet above the canyon floor, was proposed to the Cañon City Council by Lon P. Piper of San Antonio, Texas, on April 15, 1929. After depositing $60,000.00 in local banks to accomplish the task, construction began on June 5, 1929. The construction was completed in five months without a single fatality and no major accidents. Each of the 4,200 wires in the suspension cables was pulled across the gorge one at a time. All the steel was manufactured at Colorado Fuel and Iron Corp. (now Rocky Mountain Steel) in Pueblo, Colorado. The bridge was rehabilitated with new suspension cable ends, new suspender rods, new anchors, and a new stabilization system in 1984.

In the 1970's the area became a popular area to film movies. The Cowboys, starring John Wayne, The Duchess & the Dirtywater Fox, starring Goldie Hawn and George Segal, and How the West was Won, starring James Arness and Bruce Boxleitner, were filmed in the surrounding area and at Buckskin Joe Frontier Town.

Cañon City has experienced a colorful and exciting past. It pales compared to the promising future which is upon us and immediately before us. Cañon City is a most desirable place to live, work, and play.

THE ARKANSAS RIVER

Just to the North of Buena Vista and South of Leadville, at the beginning of spring on Mount Massive, a small stream fed by melting snow starts trickling down the mountain and feeds into another small stream. This stream becomes a little larger as it gathers and is held at Turquoise Lake. The outlet at Turquoise Lake is the beginning of what will become the Arkansas River. Along the upper range of the 14,000 foot Collegiate Peaks, snow melt is joined in small streams and gathers at Twin Lakes Reservoir where seasonal releases meet with natural flows.

Year-round sporting begins at Granite where Gold Medal fishing on the Arkansas can be found. Commercial raft companies start their whitewater adventures down the Arkansas at Granite. Some of the best whitewater rides can be experienced on the Arkansas through the Royal Gorge. Kayak races are a treat to watch during Salida's FIBARK celebration or Cañon City's Royal Gorge Whitewater Festival at the Whitewater Park in June. Rafting season starts at the first of May and runs through September.

The Ute Indians depended on the water and fish found in the Arkansas. Once the explorers and miners found the Arkansas Valley and the wealth of natural resources it held, communities started to grow.

Cañon City gets water from the Arkansas for the municipal water supply, which is held in a pond just west of the city. Water is treated and piped into Cañon City. It is very fresh and clear. Through the work of river users, State Forest Service, and State Park Service, the Arkansas River corridor became a State Park and is controlled for all users. Officially it is called the Arkansas River State Park. The Arkansas River flows through Pueblo, Pueblo Reservoir, the plains of Otero, Bent, and Prowers Counties into Kansas and ends in the State of Arkansas.

See the Chamber Office for the Arkansas Headwaters & Fishing Brochure. Arkansas River Walk maps are also available.

HISTORIC MAIN STREET

The Cañon City Downtown Commercial District composes the historic commercial core of the city. The eighty buildings, located within an approximate five block area along Main Street, and listed on the National Historic Register, form a continuous, cohesive grouping that reflects the development of Cañon City as a regional commercial center.

The buildings express a quality of design and richness of detail which defines the district as the best collection of late 19th and early 20th century commercial structures in the county. Rich in history, Cañon City was originally a favorite trading spot for hunters and trappers because of the mild climate, hot springs, and tolerant Indians.

Today, our downtown blends its historic charm with new breweries, boutiques, art galleries, coffee shops, and dining. It's also nestled with convenient access to museums, the library, healthcare services, and outdoor recreation with the Royal Gorge Railroad and Arkansas Riverfront corridor a mere block away.

Be sure and stop by the Chamber to pick up your self guided Walking Tour Brochure of this historic area and be sure to stop into our unique storefronts as you explore!
